“ So, to anyone that might end up reading this at some point, uh, hey. Her son, Steve, speaking here.

I wasn't able to bring myself to speak at my mom's burial, as I was still trying to process my feelings and exactly what I could say that would be respectful to her memory. I also process my feelings and thoughts much better in writing than I do in speech. This is my attempt to do so. I hope that someone finds this meaningful.

It was 2 1/2 pages in Word and too big to post here; go figure. So I put in in Google Drive here:

If you see this and you read it, I hope it gives you a nuanced view of who she was to me.
