“ When we were kids, Ney and I would spend one week at Grandma DeMars’s home. Ney was maybe 7 and me 5 when I believe that she created the first ever trail mix. From Grandma’s kitchen she gathered up chocolate chips, marshmallows and raisins. Off we went to discover the land across highway 50. Mostly it was just a big field. We found a special spot and sat down to eat our awesome “lunch”. Children have a curiosity and different way of looking at things and Reyna was a great storyteller. She kept me entertained fully. She got to come to my house for a week in the summer. Coming from a smaller family and living in Crystal it was a whole other world for her to be around 6 kids and a chicken farm. I remember one year when there was a story going around (probably just around our place-lol) that aliens were planning to come on a certain night and take all kids from age 10 – 16. Reyna was in that age group. We stood out on a hill that overlooked our swamp and watched the sky. When we saw a light (probably an airplane) Reyna would run and hide. Somehow she made it through that frightening event. I would also spend a week in the summer at her house. I remember one time Aunty Florence took us to a store and brought us to the toy department. She said we could each pick one toy. Oh my goodness!! I couldn’t believe my ears. I walked up and down those aisles to make sure I found the best one for me. I remember their turtle named Chester. When I think of Reyna, I think of fun times. I can’t believe she is gone. I will miss her.
Cousin,
Joyce Mack
