“ Sarah’s name popped into my mind today. We went to high school together and she accompanied me in getting treats for the kids we knew would be left out on days when all the popular kids got things sent to them. She was also always so very kind to my brother, who had a brain injury and didn’t always experience kindness from people. She was such a bright spirit with an amazing laugh. Always had me laughing. That’s what I remember after all these years. Heartbroken to find this. The world lost a pretty special light.
